OUR STORY...

Brothers Ben, Julius, and Carl Davis founded Davis Bakery in July of 1939. The first location was on South Taylor Road in Cleveland Heights. The brothers kept a promise requested by their father to never use lard in any of the bakery products. To this day, that promise has been honored. Working with a tight budget, the brothers did not have enough money to purchase a commercial mixer; therefore, their first mixer was coin operated, requiring quarters to be inserted before each use. Eventually, this is how the mixer was financed. A combination of sharp business acumen and vast knowledge and experience in baking, put the brother's company on the path to success.

The brothers were quite the pioneers in their industry, as they were the first bakery to incorporate delicatessens into their retail outlets. Also, Davis Bakery became the first in the country to place ovens in satellite locations, which enabled the company to offer hot, freshly baked product to customers all over the city. In the early 1960s, Davis Bakery acquired two bakery chains, which increased the number of retail outlets to 39 throughout northeast Ohio.

With increased competition from grocery stores, management began to scale back on the number of stores to focus more on the growing institutional end of the business.

Today, the second, third and fourth generations, represented by Joel, Stu, Jay and Matt, are working together to maintain our legacy and share our passion for handcrafted bakery products with the region. So whether you love our Russian Tea Biscuits, coconut bars, old-world Jewish rye bread or hot corned beef sandwiches, we continue to adhere to the standards set forth by our predecessors. We let "The Taste Tell the Story."
